Concern For Our Watershed Area Expressed By Dunbar

By Sue Aucella Deacon

During the past five years, 135 to 150 houses have been built within the Haggetts Pond/Fish Brook watershed, at the rate of 25 to 30 new homes each year.

Some 95 percent of those homes have septic tanks, according to the Board of Health chairman — "and every one of those tanks is a potential bomb sitting in the watershed."

Board of Health Chairman Douglas Dunbar last week told the selectmen that Andover residents need to be educated on the importance of properly maintaining their septic systems, because those underground systems can have an impact on the town's drinking water supply.

"We don't want their septic systems to fail," Dunbar emphasized.

The Board of Selectmen invited the chairman to appear before them last Monday night to discuss how Andover can protect its watershed.

That emerged as an issue of concern to many townspeople during this spring's town election campaign, Selectmen Chairman William Dalton said, and the selectmen wondered what town health officials are doing to help protect the watershed.

One step Andover has taken over the years has been to acquire land within the watershed, to preserve it as open space and shield it from development. The town now owns some 55 percent of property in the watershed, Public Works Director Robert McQuade pointed out last week.

That still, however, leaves nearly half the property in the watershed open to development, or at least vulnerable to the effects of nearby development.

Andover's water supply is already effected by a number of "adverse factors," Dunbar said: the presence of a landfill and gasoline storage tanks within the watershed; the use of herbicides and pesticides on large farms in the area, as well as the use of fertilizers and pesticides on residential lawns; drainage runoff from highways and interchanges, including chemicals used to melt ice off the highways; and drainage from large parking lots (such as the Internal Revenue Service lot on Lowell Street), other paved areas, and roofs.

According to Dunbar, the board of health is "very anxious" to work with the Planning Board and Conservation Commission to protect the watershed. "A lot can be done through planning and zoning regulations," he explained.

Community Development and Planning staffers who work with the three boards have begun working together to formulate "reasonable" restrictions, he added.

For example, Dunbar said, Andover might: modify the way percolation tests (done to check whether soil is suitable for septic systems) are conducted so health officials can be certain that systems are installed in the best locations; restrict the use of fill to create septic systems; prohibit the installation of garbage disposals in the area by requiring permits (because their use shortens a septic tank's life); require homeowners to prove they have pumped out their tanks regularly, or prove that pumping is not needed, also through a permit system.

Town Manager Kenneth Mahony said he expected staffers to finish studying those possibilities and others by next fall, and to complete a report by the end of the year.

If town meeting action (amendments to the zoning bylaw, for instance) proves necessary, the town will bring its proposals to the 1986 annual meeting, the manager said.

In the meantime, "a very important part of this is education," Dalton said. One fact that homeowners who live in the watershed may not want to learn: commercial lawn-care services that spray chemical fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides on West Andover lawns are potentially lethal to the water supply, because those chemicals seep into the groundwater.

The DPW director said he was far more concerned by the popularity of spring and summer lawn-spraying than by the wintertime use of road salt, which

Consultant Appointed

An Andover woman has been hired to work as a part-time consultant on the watershed protection portion of the town's master plan, staff planner Nancy Jeton of the Community Development and Planning department told the Planning Board Tuesday night.

Frances Fink of Lincoln Circle will begin working part-time on July 1 and will work for the town for six months, Jeton said, in cooperation with town staffers, the planning board, Board of Health, Conservation Commission and Public Works department.

Fink explained yesterday that she will study current problems with the watershed, and help develop "policy alternatives" that the town might consider to protect its water supply.

The new consultant will receive a master's degree in urban and environmental policy from Tufts University this Sunday.

Fink is already familiar with Andover's watershed and its difficulties: She worked as a student intern for the town last year while writing her master's thesis on watershed protection. As part of her thesis, she surveyed undeveloped residential land in Andover, and examined how its development might affect watershed protection in Andover.

Youngsters Adopt Grandparents

The students of the Andover Cooperative Rompers Nursery School had a special adoption ceremony in their classroom at St. Augustine's Church last week. Each of the children adopted a "grandparent for the day." The senior citizens of St. Augustine's Parish, who belong to a group of senior citizens organized by Sr. Georgianna Smith, were special guests of the Rompers.

The children entertained their guests with songs and rhymes they had learned about spring and the new grandparents got a chance to show of their "grandparenting" skills by helping the children with a crafts project.

Linda Ciaccia, Mary Anne Richards and Rachel Weiner, Rompers teachers, served tea.

Finally, the adoption was made official when each child presented each newly adopted grandparent with a spring flower to take home and a personal adoption certificate.

Award Presented Dr. Roddy

A professor of history at Merrimack College for 24 years has been named recipient of the college's first "Outstanding Teacher of the Year" award.

Rev. John E. Deegan, O.SA., president of Merrimack College, presented the award to Dr. Edward G. Roddy, Jr., chairman of the history department and professor of history since 1961. The newly-established award will be presented annually to a full-time faculty member who has excelled as a teacher at the college. The award includes a $1,000 cash grant and the inscription of the recipient's name on a plaque to be on permanent display in the McQuade Library on the Catholic college's North Andover campus.

In presenting the award, Fr. Deegan also announced that the award will be named in honor of Dr. Roddy, "a scholar who, in his many years on the Merrimack faculty, has demonstrated a devotion to teaching excellence, care and concern for students and a deep dedication to learning."

In accepting the award, Dr. Roddy said his years at Merrimack "have been the center of my life. And, for me, the heart of the college has been my colleagues and students.

"As you honor me. . .you also honor my students, past and present. For if there is anything distinguished about my teaching, my students are largely to be thanked for bringing out the best I had to offer."

Born in McClellantown, Penn., Dr. Roddy holds a bachelor's degree from Harvard University. He received a master's degree in European history from Georgetown in 1952 and completed his doctorate in United States history, also at Georgetown, in 1961.

Dr. Roddy served with the U.S. Army in combat intelligence during World War II. He was a district field clerk for the Teaco Petroleum Company in the Amazonia region of Columbia, South America, from 1948-49. After returning to Europe in 1950, he served as a military historian with the U.S. Army in Germany.

Dr. Edward G. Roddy, Jr.

A teaching master at the Canterbury School in New Milford, Conn., in the mid-'50s, Dr. Roddy was awarded a teaching fellowship at Georgetown during the 1959-60 academic year.

He joined the history department faculty at Merrimack College in 1960. Dr. Roddy has taught courses on World War I and II, the Cold War era, American civilization, contemporary America, the Vietnam War and biography as history.

Dr. Roddy resides in Andover.

Rep. Tucker Appointed Chairman

Speaker George Keverian has appointed Rep. Susan C. Tucker to chair the Special Commission on Teacher Retirement. The Education Reform Bill of 1984 contained an extensive revision of the teacher retirement law which was widely applauded by educators. However, the retirement section was removed from the bill due to its potential impact on the state's staggering unfunded pension liability.

"The decision to go forward with a targeted legislative inquiry into this area indicates the importance of its ranking on the public policy agenda," Keverian said. Under terms of legislation authorizing the study, the commission is required to complete its work and file its report with the House of Representatives by December 31, 1986.

Tucker was also re-appointed to the Special Commission on Child Abuse. According to Tucker, child abuse is one of the most difficult public policy issues in the nation. "On one hand we have citizens suing the state for intruding into family matters and on the other hand we have children who die from abuse because the state is limited in its intervention power, " she added.

Tucker explained that special commissions are often established to address issues, which are too complex to be handled in the normal committee structure. Many legislative committees deal with more than 500 bills each session, while a commission can focus on the best remedies for a single issue.

Health Care Facility Open House

Academy Manor of Andover will conduct an open house Wednesday, May 29, 11 a.m. - 7 p.m. at the Andover Senior Center, Whittier Street.

The event will provide an opportunity for RN's, LPN's, graduate nurses and nurses aides to discuss opportunities available at the Andover health care facility which is adding a new wing.

The atmosphere will be informal and refreshments will be served.

Millie Burns, R.N. and Sophie Murphy, R.N., will be on hand to answer questions.

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

Some babies sleep a great deal when they are first born and become upset when the mother tries to rouse them for a feeding. They awake, try to suck a few times, but then give up and drop off to sleep again. Here's a tip on what to do if your baby is this type: Rub the baby's forehead with cool water on a sponge. A single temperature change on his/her forehead is not as disturbing as a pinch or prod and does not rouse the baby enough to look around and open his mouth to complain. The nipple can then be inserted, and your baby will start nursing again. A few times using this method and your baby will be nursing effectively.

Designer Found Her Motif On A Buying Trip To England

By Sue Aucella Deacon

It isn't her practice to impose her own tastes on a client's house, interior designer Carole Kaplan of Two by Two, Andover, says. That's why she took a special delight in conjuring up a room that's exactly her style for the Junior League of Boston Decorators' Show House this year.

The designer's master bedroom is one of a houseful of professionally-decorated rooms at the historic Endicott House in Dedham, the site of this year's Show House, which will run until 4 p.m. Sunday, May 19.

The very feminine bedroom now on display looks almost precisely the way Carole envisioned it back in January, when she agreed to design a room for the Show House for the third consecutive year — but only if she could do the airy master bedroom. The first floor of the elegant Endicott House, built in 1905, features "a lot of panelling, and I've had it with dark and panelled," she explains.

Upstairs, the large (16- by 24-foot), high-ceilinged master bedroom appealed to Carole because it is filled with natural light, and she was eager to design a room that would be "almost all white, a clean and fresh and uncluttered sort of look."

The designer was in England on a buying trip for a client — in search of furniture and accessories for a country-style bedroom, in fact — when she began planning her Show House room. She chose several pieces of French country furniture, "which I happen to adore": an armoire, a table, an armchair.

Next she found some antique porcelains in her favorite colors, blue and white, "and there was my color scheme." The room was already coming together in her mind.

The final result, which has been on display since April 28, is "the easiest room I have ever done. I did what I wanted to — I did a room I love myself. It's a very, very successful space."

Carole's Show House room has inspired an "extraordinary response" (and possibly generated some new business for the designer) in the form of an "incredible" number of calls and letters. The designer is particularly pleased that House Beautiful magazine plans to feature the bedroom in a future issue, probably next fall.

The walls and floor of the bedroom are painted white. Most of the floor is covered with a faux carpet, hand-painted in a blue-and-white diamond pattern by Gerard Wiggins of Arlington (faux finishes are "very big just now," Carole notes). The diamond pattern echoes the shape of the window panes in the room's French doors. "I loved the doors so that I decided to use their diamond panes as the theme of the room."

Carole was not free to change the dark bricks of the bedroom fireplace, so she covered the fireplace with a white wooden fireboard, hand-painted with a blue tree design by Marilyn Markham of Londonderry, N.H., who also painted a blue garland design on the wall above the fireplace mantle.

Designer Carole Kaplan of Two by Two

Kaplan's Show House master bedroom

She livened up the white walls with fabric inserts in a blue-and-white scenic pattern; five other blue-and-white patterns, from varied floral prints to a large check, are used throughout the room. (All are either cotton or linen.) The bed is covered with a white scallop-edged comforter quilted in a diamond pattern, over a flowered dust ruffle, while its demi-canopy is hung with flowered draperies.

The windows, including a graceful bay, are curtained with a combination of swags and balloon shades; white sheers are shirred between two rods on the bottow half of each window. Carole designed every custom-made fabric piece in the room, from quilt to tablecloth to pillows — even the lampshades. "Everything is custom, custom, custom."

Her beloved French country antiques are grouped about the room: a cozy armchair upholstered in white sits in front of the fireplace; a table draped with a floral cloth and lace cover is placed in front of the bay window, set with an antique silver tea service and flanked by two chairs with checked seat cushions; the armoire is set before another window, topped with a lamp and flowers — white flowers, of course.

The bedroom is quite typical of Carole's work in one respect: Although it flaunts all the panache a Show House demands, it is still "very comfortable and livable," she says. "I like to design not only a beautiful space, but a space that works for the people who live there."

An Andover resident for the past 20 years ("I'm almost a townie — not quite"), Carole lives on Wintergreen Circle with her husband, Frank Kaplan, who is well-known for his work with the Andover Community Theatre (ACT); they are the parents of Elizabeth, 16, and Jeremy, 14.

Carole took up interior design 12 years ago; she is a former English teacher. "I taught at Andover High School for a while, about fifteen years ago, in my other life."

The leap from teaching English to decorating was not as daring as it might seem, she says. Her first love was writing, and designing, like writing, is "a creative process. To my mind, the transition was not so dramatic. A creative person can do many things."

But she was unaware of her own creativity until she built her own house, working "long distance" with a Connecticut architect. As she shared her ideas for the house with the architect, she began to realize that she was gifted with "an understanding of space. I could visualize things in my mind's eye. I never knew I had that perception, and that it was unusual."

Two or three years passed before Carole decided to try on a new profession. She enrolled at Chamberlayne College in Boston, and the day that she attended her first design class, "I felt a new world had opened for me. I knew there was no going back."

After completing her studies at the college, she took further courses at New England School of Art and Design, and at the Boston Architectural Center. At that point she would have liked to work as an apprentice to an established interior designer, she says, but as the mother of two young children, she wanted to stay home.

With a $500 investment, Carole opened an office at home and began accepting "very small jobs" from friends and neighbors. "My first job was a pair of draperies and a bedspread."

When she was ready for a more professional environment a couple of years later, she opened an office in Bedford, N.H., in partnership with another designer. Although the partnership was "very short-lived," Carole remained in New Hampshire for five years, until she opened an office on North Main Street in Shawsheen Square more than two years ago.

"I loved coming back to Andover. I'm very content here," she says. Her brick office building was built by William Wood of the American Woolen Company. She has redesigned the building, which was in "terrible condition" when she bought it, and now "I love it so." (Carole, who owns the building, divided it in two and rents the back half to a tenant.)

Carole started out with "this creative thing" and "a love of beauty and fine things," but she estimates that no more than one percent of her work could be considered glamorous. Most of the time

Clown Town Moves To Central Park

Send in the clowns! Clown Town is scheduled for Saturday, May 18, from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., rain or shine. Andona members have been preparing all year for the big event in Central Park, Andover.

Children will have the opportunity to be made up with typical clown makeup, don a clown hat, have a photo taken, purchase special Clown Town crafts and have a full day of fun and frolic in the Big Top atmosphere.

Games, amusements, rides and plenty of food will be available. The bake table, Syrian salad subs at Hobo Kitchen and the ever-popular sausage and pepper subs at the hamburger and hot dog stand will all be back again this year. Andona members, appropriately decked out as clowns, will be working to make this day a success to raise the funds for scholarships, camperships and other charitable activities Andona supports throughout the year.

This year's Big Show will feature Jim Vetter, a master of mime, magic and illusion, in the Doherty Auditorium at 11:30 a.m. and at 1:30 p.m. Tickets may be obtained from any Andona member or Thompson's.

Chairpersons are Doris Bicknell, Linda Brammer, Judy DiDonato and Jean Leuner.

Doherty Junior High Happenings

By Amy Mencis

The spring sports' season is almost ended and all of the teams have winning records. The baseball team recently defeated Greater Lawrence (17-4) and Central Catholic (2-0). Steve Surrette, Steve Mencis, Tom Murray and Ryan Murphy played well in those games. The softball team defeated Greater Lawrence (15-3) and Dracut (6-4) Lisa Fossela, Kristin Tamarro, Amy Moody and Amy Mencis played well. Katie Holenbeck and Julie Salazar had home runs. The boys and girls track teams remain undefeated, excelling in track and field events. Matt Corbett, Mike Mooney, Scott Carleton and Aleke Msumba are outstanding on the boys' team and Nancy Walsh, Joan Asgeirsson and Lori Thayer are outstanding for the girls.

The Student Council sponsored a seventh and eighth grade dance last Friday night and are now busy with elections for next year's officers. Primary elections are tomorrow, speeches are next Wednesday and final elections are next Thursday. The annual open house is planned for next Wednesday, May 22. Food, beverages, exhibits, music and a road race will be featured. The ninth grade Class Night is scheduled for Tuesday, June 18.

Doherty will help sponsor a Senior Citizen Olympics, assisting Andover Senior Citizen Center, on Friday, May 31. Doherty students will be matched with older people for the day and, hopefully, become life-long friends.

The eighth grade recently went on their annual Washington, D.C. trip. Many tourist attractions and historical places were visited and everyone had a great time.

The Essex County Special Olympics in track and field athletics took place at Andover High School May 4.

Tommy Cyr won a gold medal in the softball throw and took fifth place in the 50 meter dash.

Julie Sullivan won a bronze medal in the relay race and took fourth place in the 50 meter dash and fifth place in the softball throw.

Sincere, Fair, Well-Educated Describe This Administrator

By Susan Rand

The miniature herd of elephants that sit in the left hand corner of his desk are the perfect antithesis of Leslie George Loomis.

A soft-spoken, contemplative man, the town's assistant superintendent for secondary school education has been characterized by school officials as sincere, fair and well-educated. A just plain "nice guy." His colleagues and those he supervises speak almost glowingly of this newest administrator.

If he is thought, at times, to be covering some of the same ground as did those who came before him, it seems to be Loomis's way. Educators admit that change is slow in Andover's school system, as elsewhere.

Loomis recently talked about his first five months on the job with THE TOWNSMAN.

In his supervisory post Loomis, who came to Andover from upstate New York where he was a high school principal, oversees the two junior high schools, Doherty and West, as well as Andover High School. There are some 2,450 students, 203 teachers and counselors and seven principals and assisant principals in those schools under Loomis's guidance.

As one of the top administrators overseeing the town's eight public schools Loomis splits his assistant responsibilities with Assistant Superintendent Lois Haslam, who oversees elementary education in five other schools. Both answer to Superintendent Kenneth R. Seifert.

Loomis, who is 40, and Haslam are the first permanent assistant superintendents in the Andover school system. Their appointments follow a year that saw two acting assistant superintendents, one of whom was Haslam, and a six month search to fill the secondary assistant position which was for a time held by Doherty Junior High Principa Richard McGrail.

This job represents Loomis's first administrative position. Before he came to Andover he had been the principal of Fayetteville-Manlius High School, located east of Syracuse, N.Y., since 1981. When he was hired here, last October, Loomis's salary was set at $47,000.

There were other principal's jobs, too, at Ridgefield High School, in Ridgefield, Conn., and at Newton South High School, in Newton Centre. And running high schools Loomis did his own homework too, earning a doctorate in education from Harvard Graduate School of Education, in 1981. He also has a master's degree in business from the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, earned in 1976. His bachelor's degree is from Williams College.

Loomis has always been an educator, starting back in 1970 with his years spent as a Peace Corps volunteer. And later as a director of a language instruction program for corporate executives in Pereira, Columbia, in South America.

"I like kids," Loomis said. "I think I understand teaching and the learning process. It's an art."

In Andover his goals are many; Loomis has his work cut out for him. But an overriding message in much of what the newest assistant superintendent says is his need to let Andover's residents know just how good their secondary schools are, seconded in his cry for more parental involvement in their children's education.

The need for more adult involvement comes, for example, explained Loomis, in the fight to combat drug and alcohol abuse in the secondary schools. Not only schools, but also churches, synagogues, community agencies and, most of all, parents need to help their children, says Loomis, in what he calls a "complicated and demanding world," were the plethora of choices and expectations make this a difficult time to grow up.

"Schools are viewed as having added social responsibility," says Loomis. But, he said, "there is a limit to what schools can do There needs to be more discussion to help heighten parental awareness that their sons and daughters need more support than they are getting. What we are doing now in the schools is truly a matter of life and death. It is good to remind ourselves of that, instead of the smaller things that divide and detract from our sense of community.

Loomis

"Teachers give until there isn't any more. There aren't enough teachers," says the assistant superintendent. Again, the support must come from the community.

In fact, Loomis would like to give teachers a break. Asked to imagine a school system with unlimited resources Loomis said his first priority would be to reduce class size to an "ideal" of 12 to 15 students in a class, the size, he says, private schools are often able to maintain.

With a lower teacher-student ratio, his next goal would be to promote more active student learning, said Loomis. But this idea isn't solely dependent on funding. It is an idea he wants to make a reality for Andover's secondary students.

Students should take more responsibility for their education, said the assistant superintendent. If teachers could be assured that the homework they assign would be done the next day, classroom teaching could take on a Socratic method with more questioning and philosophy brought into daily discussion instead of the routine dissemination of information that all too often is left to teachers.

"Students can get a better education than they are getting," said Loomis. "by taking more responsibility for their education. We need to see the elements of the culture change so that students are proud of putting in three and four hours (of study) a night."

An increase in the quality of education in Andover is one of Loomis's goals. But, he acknowledges that the schools here are among the best in the state, a fact he found out when he considered coming to Andover. The quality, though, is not recognized in the level of funding of Andover's schools, according to Loomis who says the schools are given less money than many other public school systems of Andover's caliber.

"Andover is just slightly above the median across the state in spending," said Loomis. "I am amazed at the return students and parents get for their tax dollars. The reason that the quality exists is primarily because of the faculty."

As he lists his accomplishments thus far Loomis says he has established himself in a "fairly positive way." Other significant work, says Loomis, is his creation of a Secondary School Council, which meets once a month to discuss current issues in the schools; his work with new social studies and language programs, now being developed for the secondary schools; planning of research and development projects for next year and his participation in the Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce Safety Foundation, which has authored a drug and alcohol policy adopted by area school systems.

But there is much to be done. His goals include an improved school atmosphere, an assessment of the secondary curriculum, a revitalization of the secondary teachers by more effectively meeting their needs and making them feel valued, creation of a plan for computer education and improving guidance in the three schools as well as a better college admissions program for high school seniors and expanded student activities in secondary schools, where Loomis has had his first major public challenge.

The assistant superintendent has tried to convince the School Committee that the high school needs a student activities coordinator, a post Loomis expects one of the two assistant principal at the school will take on, after he gets the committee to agree to hiring administrative assistants for each assistant principal. His first go-around ended with Supt. Seifert withdrawing the proposal as committee support was split on the idea. Last Tuesday Loomis again talked with the committee about the student activities post but another discussion ended without a decision to support or deny the postions, which Loomis will again talk to the school board about at their May 21 meeting.

An idealist, Loomis calls himself highly motivated, which, he explained is both an asset and a weakness. He wants the best for those he supervises but he tends to be hard driving and impatient, said Loomis.

"I'm good at getting things done," Loomis said. "I want action and results."

The obstacles of work within a public school system are his frustrations. They include politics, the lack of financial resources and resistance to change, said the administrator.

Working with a School Committee is a new ball game for the former principal. And he said his challenge is to create a common direction along with the five-member board.

Said Loomis, "we must be unified and confident that our efforts are the right ones and (that they are) paying off for the students. The beauty of the public school system is that you need to reach consensus. The checks and balances are both a benefit and a hindrance."

The town of Andover, too, has its good and bad points, according to Loomis. It is a community full of high-caliber people, steeped in tradition and beautiful, but, Loomis added, there is also competition here, both social and achievement oriented.

Haslam and Seifert have nothing but compliments for the job Loomis has done thus far. Assistant Superintendent Haslam said the two have skills that complement each other, while Superintendent Seifert praised Loomis's quick understanding of the school system. He also said

Atkins also serves on the Surface Transportation, Investigations and Oversight and Public Buildings and Grounds Subcommittees of the Public Works Committee. # AHS Chorus Awarded Medal On Weekend

Thirty-three members of the Andover High School Chorus and Show Choir competed in a regional adjudication in Philadelphia last weekend and were awarded a bronze medal for their performance, which indicates ratings of excellent, superior and outstanding.

Under the direction of Keith Gould, the chorus sang "Choose Something Like A Star" and "O Magnum Mysterium." The Show Choir performed "The Rim of Time," "Everybody Rejoice" and "Puttin' on the Ritz." The award was presented at a special banquet and ceremony that climaxed a weekend of activities and competition.

The students presented their award-winning songs in the Annual Spring Concert held at Collins Center. It was the final performance of the graduating seniors and a special tribute to Keith Gould, who is celebrating his 25th year as the choral director and music teacher at the high school.

To Study In Japan For Summer

Samantha Allison of Andover will have the opportunity to live and learn in Japan through the Toyota Summer in Japan Scholarship Program.

The program enables the daughter of Peter Allison, vice president of Nordic Toyota in Burlington, Vt., to spend eight weeks living as a member of a Japanese family, experiencing the family's day-to-day activities and the country's customs and traditions.

"The Toyota Scholarship Program gives the high school student invaluable insight into the ways of the people of Japan," said Yukiyasu Togo, president of Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. (TMS/USA). "The best way to understand and appreciate a foreign country is to actually experience the culture and environment."

The Toyota Summer in Japan Scholarship Program is open to the sons and daughters of the more than 47,000 employees of the nearly 1,100 Toyota dealers in the U.S., TMS/USA, its subsidiaries and distributors. Students are selected on the basis of academic excellence, maturity and a desire to broaden their personal horizons. Youth for Understanding, a non-profit student exchange organization, administers the program for Toyota.

DCS To Visit Children's Museum

The Department of Community Services will conduct another popular family trip the The Children's Museum at Museum Wharf on Boston's waterfront on Sunday, May 19, from 12:15 p.m. to 5 p.m.

The Children's Museum offers a varied recreational and educational experience for children of all ages, and adults too. Some fun things to do include: climbing inside a giant coffee cup or down a manhole; investigate the properties of bubbles; work on an assembly line; play games with the computers; visit a Native American wigwam; and explore a turn-of-the-centruy Victorian house.

Admission is free. The museum is able to offer free admission to non-profit community groups from Massachusetts thanks to a continued appropriation from the state legislature. A small fee will be charged to cover bus transportation.

Adults may want to visit the Resource Center and get information about the services and materials the museum offers for adults who work with children—courses, workshops, discovery kits, library materials and recyle, a collection of industrial materials ideal for arts and crafts projects.

Register for the trip at the DCS office on Bartlet Street through Friday. Space is limited to a first-come, first-served basis.

O'Brien served as president of the Student/Alumni Association, was head resident 1984/85 and active in the Sigma Beta Kappa fraternity.

O'Brien, son of Mary and James O'Brien of Andover, will graduate in May and plans to attend graduate school and study engineering.

Judy Collins Returns to Center

Judy Collins

The glamorous and gifted Judy Collins, whose appearance last year at Andover's J. Everett Collins Center was a highlight of the season, returns to the Merrimack Valley for one performance only Saturday, May 18, at 8 p.m.

Now in her third decade as a recording artist, Collins continues to reach audiences of all ages with her exceptional music. Her unique style and beautifully clear voice have made her one of the music world's most popular and enchanting artists.

From the folk songs of the early and mid-60s by such writers as Leonard Cohen, Joni Mitchell and Bob Dylan, to the sophisticated music of the Broadway stage ("Memory" and "Send in the Clowns"), Judy's music reflects her life and the world around her.

"My work is an expression of the person I am," she says, "a mother, a friend, an artist, a woman."

In a recent interview, she was asked how her music has changed over the past 20 years.

"I still sing 'Both Sides Now,' but it's very different," she said. The trick is to find songs that are going to last more than six minutes. Good songs change, and they're always gorgeous in a new kind of way."

Judy has recorded more than 20 L.P.s since 1961, interpreting in her own unforgetable style the spectrum of contemporary music, folk, rock, country and pop.

She was well-established in the folk-field in the late '60s and very active in recording songs by important new composers such as Randy Newman's "I Think it's Going to Rain Today" and Joni Mitchel's "Both Sides Now" and "Chelsea Morning."

Collins released two albums in the early '70s, "Whales of Nightingales" (featuring "Amazing Grace") and "Judith" ("Send in the Clowns"), both of which went gold. Some of her more recent L.P.'s include "Hard Times for Lovers" 1979, "Running for my Life" (1980) and "Home Again" released last summer.

Collins' overwhelmingly successful appearance at the Collins Center last May and her sold-out performance at Boston's Symphony Hall illustrates her continued popularity.

Tickets are available at the Collins Center Box Office, Shawsheen Road.

Academy Orchestra In Concert

The Phillips Academy Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of William Thomas, will present a concert on Friday, May 24, at 7:30 p.m. in Cochran Chapel on the Andover campus.

The program will include Antonio Vivaldi's "Concerto for Four Violins and Orchestra," Bach's "Concerto in D Minor for Two Violins and Orchestra," Edouard Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 21" and "Symphony No. 2 in D Major, Op. 73" by Johannes Brahms.

Hilary Babcock from Dallas, TX, Heidi Crebo from Marston Mills and Alvin Wen from Worcester, members of the senior class, will be soloists.

The public is invited.

Dancers Perform At Manor

Becky Arnold, Andover dancer and choreographer, and her dance troupe will perform for the residents of Academy Manor Nursing Home in Andover on Sunday, May 19.

The dances have been choreographed to the music of Fats Waller, a favorite among the residents.

Why perform contemporary dance at a nursing home? The excitement that an up-temp dance performance can generate among residents is entertaining and therapeutic. Residents seem to love the movement of the dancers, their costumes and more importantly, they feel important when people from the outside come into the home to perform.

Fats Waller music helps rekindle many old memories among the elderly which may not have been stimulated in years. David Solomont, administrator of Academy Manor, believes that the cultural interests of the elderly should be kept alive. Even as a person gets older there is still the potential for appreciating the arts.

At Academy Manor residents are given exposure to a variety of cultural activities, within the nursing home and outside, such as opera, dance and theatre.

Arnold will do some participatory movements and exercises in which the more active residents can partake. The dances have been scheduled on a Sunday afternoon in the hope that families will join their relatives at Academy for this special event.

BRUCE SAYS:
"I NEVER FELT BETTER!"

BRUCE TELLS HIS OWN STORY:
"My company, Metropolitan Life, requires a yearly physical examination. Each year I was a 'little' overweight, until the 'little' became 30 pounds. My physican advised me to seriously consider losing this weight through diet and exercise. I began walking a few miles every day, but wasn't seeing any good news at the scale.

I was fortunate to meet a group of DIET CENTER counselors at a Home Show, and after hearing about their program, I decided to give it a try. I lost weight steadily, felt terrific — and loved it! In no time, the scale was registering 25 pounds less!

I CAN TRUTHFULLY SAY THAT THE DIET CENTER PROGRAM IS THE BEST THING I EVER DID IN MY LIFE FOR MY HEALTH. My blood pressure is down and my doctor is pleased. And most of all, I never felt better!

By 'maintaining' at the DIET CENTER, I'm keeping my weight off, too

A Democratic Ministry Aim Of New West Parish Associate

By Susan Rand

Dirkje Legerstee brings with her a commitment to a democratic ministry as she begins her first job as the associate minister at Andover's West Parish Church.

Legerstee, who graduated from the Andover Newton Theological School last May, is on her way to ordination as a United Church of Christ minister, scheduled for June 9. She will also be installed this fall at West Church.

The ministry is a career change for the 32-year-old former teacher who decided to leave her New Hampshire classroom because her grammar school classes didn't fulfill her needs.

"I found that teaching about God wasn't appropriate," Legerstee said. She wanted to help children make informed choices about religion, adding that she would "like to see religion have a better place in the educational system."

It was after an intense, and competitive, search process that Legerstee was accepted for the position she began almost two weeks ago at West Parish. As she explained the United Church of Christ (UCC), or Congregational, method of chosing ministers, Legerstee joked that it included "ten pages of everything but your shoe size."

The denomination is a popular one with seminary graduates, with as many as 200 hoping for each job opening in New England, according to Legerstee.

Her job as a minister gives Legerstee a chance to become involved in what she says are the most important times in peoples lives, birth, marriage and death. But she sees her position at West, and within the UCC, as ministering with, not to, people.

Her responsibility, she explains, "to help people find the confidence they need to go out into the world and minister to others."

And it is her internal system of values, her conscience, that dictates the job she must do. She hesitates to say she has "a calling," rather that it is a "feeling that this is the right thing" as her motivation.

Her sense of fairness is at once evident as Legerstee talks of her work. As a seminary student she studied with many Catholic women who some day hoped to assume leadership roles in their church. But in the meantime, said the associate minister, they are "overlooked as vital resources (hoping) to be priests. I hurt with them thinking that the Catholic Church has to advertise for young men."

The language of her church, too, is important to Legerstee who explains that it is easy to exclude persons by the way we speak.

"Language is an incredibly important issue," she says. "If someone says 'brethren' where am I?" As a woman, her ministry may open up new areas of discussion at West Parish, says Legerstee. And she will be an advocate of all womens' ministries, who historically have been minimized, said the minister.

Legerstee's decision to minister as a UCC was a choice based on the democracy of the religion as well as the autonomy of each church. When she entered the seminary she did not know what demonination she would join. Also, the attention and ongoing discussion within UCC churches about current matters like Central America and apartheid were important to Legerstee.

At West Parish, Legerstee will be involved in a number of activities including religious education which she will coordinate with the church school superintendent. She hopes to revitalize the youth group and teach bible studies and other programs. As the first full-time associate minister she will also assist Pastor Graham Ward with church visiting and during the Sunday services.

To characterize her relationship with the over 400 members and friends of the West Parish, Legerstee likened her job to a marriage.

"I covenant with these people," she says. "It takes a lot of communication and hard work."

Legerstee, who came to the United States from the Netherlands at the age of four, lives in Framingham with her husband, Steve Mague, a civil engineer. They will soon move to Westford, where the minister is waiting to get to work on a garden. Fond of growing things, participating in all kinds of outdoor activities and entertaining, Legerstee says, with a smile, that she is "a person who really loves life."

Ecumenical Service For Peace Planned Tuesday

Rev. Dennis Kohl and members of Faith Lutheran Church invite the Andover community to join them in an ecumenical prayer service for peace on Tuesday, May 20, at 7:30 p.m. The eighth in a series of nine monthly peace services, established this fall by the Andover Ecumenical Peace Group, the May service will incorporate elements of prayer, lessons and meditation.

The monthly prayer services, each sponsored by one of 13 local churches, present an opportunity for each church to share its understanding of the issues of peace and celebrate the unity of all God's people on this important issue. Participating Andover churches have joined to sponsor the Andover Peace Covenant, a personal convenant with one's God to pray for, study and discuss the issues of peace and join in support of all others who are working for peace.

The service is open to all. An informal coffee hour will follow the service. A special copy of the Andover Peace Covenant, for members of the Andover community who are not affiliated with one of the participating churches, will be available.

Paschal Candle To Be Dedicated

The congregation of the Ballard Vale United Church (an United Methodist and United Church of Christ Congregation) will mark the seventh Sunday of Easter with a dedication of a new Paschal Candle and stand at this Sunday's 10:30 a.m. service. Her son-in-law, the Rev. Louis Hoyer, will preach on "Finding God in Every Day Places." Church school for adults is at 9:30 a.m. and for children at 10:30 a.m. with nursery care.

To Attend Convention

Local Lutherans will attend a New England-wide Lutheran Church in America convention in Hartford, Conn., May 30-June 1, to discuss the future of their church.

Lynne Meridith of Methuen, Linda Downer of North Andover and the Rev. Dennis Kohl of Andover will represent Faith Lutheran Church, Andover, in three days of church business at the Parkview Hilton.

They will join 600 representatives from the 137 congregations of the New England synod of the Lutheran Church in America to decide the shape of a merged Lutheran church.

Yard Sale Planned At Church

The Ballard Vale United Church will sponsor a church yard sale Saturday, June 1, in the church parking lot, beginning at 9 a.m. Elizabeth Cornell is general chairperson. Persons wishing to make table or space reservations may call her or the church office.

Loomis

Loomis is adept at communicating with a number of different groups.

"He is very much in touch with what students are thinking," Seifert said. "What they need is uppermost in his mind."

The three men who work directly under Loomis, as heads of the secondary schools, too, had good words for their boss.

"His style allows you to make progress on your own and yet he is there to give assistance when you need him," said Jack Hughes, acting princpal at Doherty Junior High School.

And West Junior High Principal William Hart said Loomis "has gained the confidence of the secondary staff and faculty for his candor, organizational skills and ability to deal with people at a public level." Hart added that the three schools "finally got someone who understands the secondary needs of our schools.

Echoing the responses of the junior high principals was Stephen Richardson, acting principal at Andover High, who called Loomis a fair, objective and visible administrator.

"It is good that he's in the building a lot," Richardson said of the trips Loomis makes to Andover High for meetings and lunch each week. "We've seen him a lot here and the teachers have made comments that this is good."

The only hint at criticism comes from Andover Education Association Vice-President Edward Bennett, a teacher at Doherty, who said some of the teachers feel Loomis is doing things that have been done before.

"We have been through a number of assistant superintendents in Andover," said the teachers' union officer, adding that at times Loomis is trying to "reinvent the wheel."

But Bennett is quick to praise the assistant superintendent's curriculum development skills and his sincerity.

When not working Loomis is spending his precious free time with his family, wife Betsy and his almost two-year-old daughter Kate. His voice softens as he talks about the importance of not bringing his work home at night.

The Loomis family is looking forward to summer when they will move into the home they are building in Londonderry, N.H.

Sitting next to a wooden sailboat and a photograph in Loomis's office is a jar full of colored marbles, a reminder of a graduation ceremony at another high school. As a principal Loomis once made some changes in the annual graduation ceremony, to the displeasure of a group of students. And, they decided to register their unhappiness in what Loomis calls, smiling, "a prank." About 85 of the graduating seniors received their diplomas and Loomis got a marble in hand as he was congratulating them.

Soon Loomis will watch his first Andover High School graduation, a ceremony he has seen many times. This year's commencement promises to be more in line with what Andover's students want for their graduation thanks to an ongoing discussion they have had with faculty, parents and, of course, administrators about the graduation ceremony of the class of 1985. There have been kudos all around about the progress made as graduation '85 nears.

And this time Loomis probably won't end up with a handful of marbles come June 3.

Designer

she depends upon her education and "technical knowledge.

"I know all about plumbing. I can design bathrooms, kitchens, cabinetry. I know where the walls should be. If you give me the shell of a house, I can do everything that needs to be done inside, come up with all the drawings and specifications that a contractor needs to follow."

She is proud of her professionalism, adding that as professionals, interior designers are "still misunderstood. Decorators used to be wealthy ladies with socialite friends, but that's all changed. Most of my clients are not wealthy."

She is an active member of the American Society of Interior Designers (ASID), a professional organization that is, she explains, "very difficult to get into" because its standards are "very high."

Members are required to have an accredited education as well as experience — and they must pass a "horrendous" two-day examination that only 30 percent of the designers in America today have passed, Carole says.

"The standards should be high," she says. "How else are we going to call ourselves professionals?" The designer is a member of the ASID board of directors for New England, as well as chairman of the ASID education committee. "I keep progressing and growing and learning all the time."

Because she likes "working closely with people and being involved with their lives," Carole works mostly in residential design. She does, however, work on small-scale commercial projects as well, such as executive offices, shops and restaurants ("I don't like doing huge spaces").

Her own tastes run to the "curvy lines" and floral prints of the French and English country looks, which she started combining years before they became trendy.

She loves blue and white and soothing, sophisticated neutral colors, antiques, porcelains, natural fibers, "anything really good and well-made."

But unlike many designers, she has chosen not to develop a signature look. "My tastes influence what I do, but I don't believe you could walk into a room and know that I've done it. That's not my philosophy," she explains. "I don't do one style — I like variety, from sleek contemporary to country." Besides, Carole says, it isn't her role to reproduce her favorite looks in someone else's house.

Lately she's been working with many clients who are building new homes or additions, helping them choose lighting, tiles and carpeting, wall colors and kitchen cabinetry as they go along.

Clients often come to her seeking a new look for two or three rooms; rare is the client who has the wherewithal to redecorate an entire house at once (like the Cape Cod client, for instance, who wanted an entire condominium redesigned "from top to bottom, inside out, right down to the last dish on the coffee table").

It's important for client and designer to be able to communicate and understand each other, Carole says; the "chemistry" must be right. And as a project progresses, the designer's sense of humor becomes important, too.

If Carole's workload seems overwhelming at times, she thanks Two by Two's small staff for helping her "pull it off."

Design assistant Katherine Savage is hardworking, supportive and "pure delight"; secretary/bookkeeper Margot Luhrmann "keeps everything together here — without her it would be impossible. I have two women working with me who are wonderful, and that's very satisfying to me."

Designing a room for a show house demands months of planning and great expense, she says, but regional — and even national — attention can be the reward.

Last year, the room she designed for her second Junior League Show House was featured in McCall's magazine; last month, her current Show House design was the subject of a Boston Globe feature story.

The Junior League Show House is the most prestigious designers' showcase in New England, she says, and competition for space in the house each year is great. Carole considers it an honor to be chosen to design a Show House room, and is especially proud that she was assigned her first choice: the master bedroom.

One of the Show House's charms is that its designers are made to feel "a bit like celebrities. For a while you're on stage, and part of the reward is that it's an ego trip. And why not? We need that."

Carole Kaplan's only complaint about interior design is that she emjoys it so much, at times she lets it drive her too hard.

"It has become so important to me —it's much more than a job. Sometimes I have to stop and pull back. The work is difficult, but I love it — and the temptation is to give it too much."

For Those Of Us Who Are Older

By Janet D. Lake

There will be a trip to the Sheraton Mansfield Hotel Monday, June 24, for an afternoon of good eating and good entertainment. World-famous and most accomplished violinist and humorist Florian Zabach and Jimmy Nelson, ventriloquist, probably best known for his work on the Milton Berle TV show are among the really super entertainment. You may choose baked ham or boneless breast of chicken for your luncheon—and all for $25, of course including deluxe transportation. But, you have to sign up now.

One of the problems the senior center has is the number of people who wait until the last minute to sign up for special events, which the center must pay for well in advance. If there is not a significant number signed up well in advance for any given event, the center has no choice but to cancel the event. Many who really want to attend a function are disappointed to find that when they go at the last minute to sign up, the event has been cancelled because there were not enough to warrant investing in the necessary number of tickets in anticipation of those who wait until the last minute. So, sign up now for whatever it is you would like to attend.

There will be a trip to the North Shore Music Theatre for a performance of "Oklahoma!" July 10. Theater and bus will cost $15. You can have lunch at the center before you go for 50 cents. Of course, you have to let everyone know you want to have lunch before the day of the theater party so they'll be prepared for you. but, again, you need to sign up now.

The Haven Associates are sponsoring some trips you might like to know about, too. Doris Hudgins is leading a trip to the Pennsylvania Dutch Country September 10-13. They are also planning a super trip to Hawaii, San Francisco and Las Vegas in October. These trips are open to senior citizens throughout the area. There is a Mystery Trip June 18 for Haven Associates only, also led by Doris Hudgins, whom you should call for further information.

The senior center is planning an all-day party at the Cape in Hyannis August 5. It will include a tour of the area with a local guide, shopping at the Christmas Shop and the Candle Factory and a lobster-clam bake with all the trimmings. But, it is not too early to sign up now. Cost for the day is $29.

Watch for the next Community Services Bulletin in your mail and the next senior center newsletter for lists of all the classes coming up.

Do you know someone who is homebound, frail, etc., who might benefit from the Meals on Wheels program? Although docter certification is needed, that need not happen until the program is started. Call the center for more information has been a longstanding worry in town.

(Dunbar said he'd like to see the town stop using all salt; McQuade said Andover uses one part salt to five parts sand — and that most salt comes from Route 495, which is maintained by the state, not the town.)

Dalton suggested that the town begin working on the lawn-spraying problem immediately. The board will also discuss the use of road salt some time next fall, he added.

Lamp Sparks Damaging Fire

Firefighter Charles Keeler knocks out jagged glass from Fern Salter's second floor apartment after the fire was put out.

Frye Circle residents watched as Fern Salter's home burned Friday afternoon, forcing her out of her second floor apartment.

When Andover firefighters responded to the call, received from a neighbor, at 11:36 a.m., they found the four room home full of smoke and very hot, said Deputy Chief Robert Boush.

A lamp nestled under a kitchen cabinet started the fire which brought three Andover fire trucks and the ambulance to the scene, keeping firefighters at Frye Circle for a total of 70 minutes.

Firefighter Robert Salisbury suffered smoke inhalation and heat exhaustion and was treated and released at Lawrence General Hospital, said Boush.

Salter's home was gutted by the blaze, said Boush. And the mother of Town Clerk Elden Salter, will be temporarily housed in an apartment owned by the Andover Housing Authority.

Housing Authority Director Nancy Pentland told THE TOWNSMAN on Friday that she was working to find an available apartment for Salter. Pentland, too, said she was expecting an insurance adjuster to visit the Salter apartment, also owned by the Housing Authority.

The firefighters had to pull down ceilings in the apartment to ventilate the area and to make certain that the fire hadn't spread. There was minor smoke damage in the hall of the building but the exterior of the building, called building C, was not damaged.

Tentarelli tied for seventh place in all of New England and placed first in the individual scoring for Essex County. She also had the highest score of all Pike School students.

Dunn tied for fourth place in Essex County and had the second highest score in the school. Paul Howe was the eighth grade student with the highest score in Pike School.

Residents Inform Selectmen, Assessors Of Taxing Concerns

By Sue Aucella Deacon

Andover taxpayers are, a sizeable group of them told the selectmen this week, unconvinced that the latest assessments of their properties are accurate, confused by neighbors' valuations that seem out of proportion to their own —and angry at the assessors for not answering their questions.

The Board of Selectmen moderated a 90-minute discussion on Andover's assessment procedures at town offices on Bartlet Street Monday night. Assessor William Russell fielded questions from the roomful of townspeople who attended, and Town Counsel Alfred Daniels was on hand as well.

Several residents complained about valuations that had increased by 25 percent or more, and asked why similar houses in their neighborhoods received smaller increases.

And many told the selectmen they were angry because the Board of Assessors rejected their applications for abatements without explanation; those residents said they believed they were entitled to a hearing before the assessors.

Russell explained that according to state law, the assessors are not required to grant hearings to townspeople. The three-member board has therefore made it a policy not to routinely hold hearings, he said, because they don't have time to meet with every citizen who files an application for an abatement.

This year, the board received 750 applications for abatements on residential assessments; none of those townspeople were granted hearings, the assessor said. (Six hearings were granted to commercial or industrial property-owners, he added.)

But Russell assured the residents that the board had reviewed "every single application" for an abatement, meeting twice a week from December through April in public meetings to discuss those applications.

Town Manager Kenneth Mahony added that "quite a few" taxpayers have

Warriors To Play Under The Lights

By Sue Aucella Deacon

Next fall, those Andoverites who are not addicted to Dallas will have something else to do on Friday nights instead: They can go to a nighttime football or soccer game at Andover High School, under the lights at Lovely Field.

Selectmen Chairman William Dalton this week told the TOWNSMAN that although Lovely Field is now in the dark after nightfall, it will be illuminated with up to $70,000 worth of lights by next September, in time for fall sports at the high school.

Funds for the lights will not come out of the town budget, Dalton said, but will be donated by local businesses.

Although the final funding details have yet to be arranged, it is clear that the Andover Companies of Shawsheen Square will be the major contributor, he said.

The town manager is getting ready to solicit bids for the lighting contract, Dalton said, and all abutters of the high school field will be notified so that they may offer their comments to town officials. (Most abutters have already been informed of the lighting plans, he added, and have indicated that their chief concern is that night games be adequately policed.)

The selectmen appointed a lighting committee in September 1983 to study the possibility of adding lights to the high school playing field.

Town officials had little interest in spending town money to buy the lights, however (the cost has been estimated at $50,000 to $70,000), so the selectmen sought private donations, Dalton said. Private contributions will also be used to light parking lots near the field.

The chairman was enthusiastic about the prospect of nighttime games at Andover High. "This is a concrete, positive step to take," Dalton said.

High school teams may attract a new audience, he explained, increasing revenues collected for tickets and refreshments. More parents will have a chance to see their children play. And players, their coaches, and families will end up with a little more free time on Saturdays, he added.

School Committee Chairman Donald Robb was more subdued when asked for his comments on the lighting plan this week.

"It really doesn't make that much difference to me," Robb said. "There are people at the high school who think it's a good idea because it will give them a little more flexibility in scheduling games, and I have no objections to that."

The chairman said his "only concern" was that erecting lights at Lovely Field may eventually cost the school system money, even if they are purchased with private donations.

"Putting them up is just the first step," he explained. "What it will cost to maintain them, and for electricity, remains to be seen." Keeping electric bills under control is a constant concern at the high school, he noted, especially since the school has an electric heating system.

Robb said he did not expect the school committee to vote on the lighting proposal during a future meeting, or to discuss it at any great length.

The selectmen's plans to light up Lovely Field set off a few sparks among school committee members last fall. Back in September, the school committee criticized the lighting committee's investigation, saying that neither they nor high school administrators had been informed of the lighting idea.

The school committee also questioned the selectmen's authority to erect lights at the school playing field.

In recent months, Dalton said this week, the school committee has been kept abreast of the lighting committee's work through communications with Robb and Superintendent Kenneth Seifert.

Crafts In The Park

The tenth annual Crafts in The Park took on a new look as it was held for the first time in the renovated Central Park. New landscaping and brick walkways were an added attraction to the 130 craftspeople who exhibit and sold their unique pieces of work ranging from pottery and quilts to woodworking and folk art. Crafts in the Park is a fund-raising event sponsored by the Andover Chapter of the American Field Service and the Department of Community Services. Proceeds will be used to provide scholarships to bring AFS students from foreign countries to Andover and send Andover students abroad on a summer and full-year program. # Opinion

Communication Helps

A general discussion of Andover's assessing practices conducted before selectmen this week, was an excellent idea. It contributed to clearing the air, so to speak, on some problems facing both the town and taxpayers, something that could have been resolved earlier simply through better communication between municipal agencies and the taxpaying public.

Problems arose generally due to the nature of the assessing practice which, at best, is an inexact science.

While it is carried out by professional appraisers, there is always doubt when the tax bill arrives as to the value placed on the property. There also is the opportunity to compare a property with another and come up with the feeling that one has been personally hurt by the value placed on the personal plot.

Pretty generally a property owner would question the value assigned to his holdings. But, if offered that price for the property it would probably be rejected in favor of a higher amount.

All of this can be summed up in the simple observation that no one is overjoyed at the prospect of paying taxes, particularly when they wind up increasing.

There is, however, one factor which somewhat eases the burden and that is the ability to communicate and resolve any discrepancies, whether real or imagined.

The assessors, understandably, could not handle the heavy volume of appeals filed this past year. Revaluation resulted in new figures for most all properties in town, thus requests for reconsideration numbering over 750.

The board is not compelled to grant hearings, simply review the request and respond.

But, frankly, it would seem that some effort could be made in the future to respond to these appeals, if not through hearing than through a personal explanatory letter outlining reasons for either approval or rejection of abatements.

Some additional temporary clerical assistance in the assessors office could address one portion of the procedure.

Fact of the matter remains that even if a person hasn't succeeded in winning a reduction in property values, at least one feels better having been able to get the complaint off one's chest.

And, a public service agency, which municipal government is, has an obligation to allow its principal form of support, the taxpayers, the opportunity to air their feelings at times.

Which, simply put, means improved communication with individuals when necessary.

Down The Years With The Townsman

75 Years Ago — May 1910

Charles P. Otis, son of Mrs. Charles P. Otis of Salem Street, was one of eleven young men, all graduates of theological schools, who received holy orders, confirmed by Bishop William Lawrence at the Church of the Advent in Boston on Monday.

Boston, May 19 — Millions of eyes were upturned to the heavens last night from every part of the habitable globe to catch a glimpse of the tail of the elusive Halley's comet as the earth was swept through it. Astronomers in every part of the world, in Cambridge, on the top of Great Blue Hill, in Flagstaff, Arizona, on the mountains in Peru near Arequipe, from crowded cities and on lonely mountain tops, men eminent in astronomy were making observations of a celestial event that was unique to them in all their years of study and research.

The investigation that fails to find at least one scapegoat is a pretty useless sort of thing these days. If it can work itself out in the discovery of several, it has been a most "successful investigation." By this standard, the committee who have had charge of the Southbridge Bank probe have performed a useful service. They have blamed everybody and everything, including Halley's Comet, for the condition of affairs which resulted in the closing of the Southbridge Savings Bank.

50 Years Ago — May 1935

The valuation of the Shawsheen Mills of the American Woolen Company will remain the same as a year ago, it was learned yesterday, despite the request of the Woolen Company for a reduction of $100,000. The year previous another request for a reduction had been made, and $100,000 had been sliced off, representing a reduction in their tax bill of $1950. This year, however, the selectmen refused to grant a further reduction.

Misspellings galore — and not a single one of them printer's errors — came forth from over 100 local public school children in the annual Lincoln spelling contests at the town hall last Friday night. But more importantly, correct spellings too came forth, with Miss Alice Donovan of the high school proving for the second year in succession the premiere speller of the town's public schools. Miss Donovan won the first prize of ten dollars in the finals.

Times are going to be much worse for our descendants in 100 years, according to the three Phillips Academy debaters who Tuesday night won the sixty dollar prize in the annual H.S. Robinson contest held at George Washington hall. The question on which the winners argued the affirmative was "Resolved: that this house pities its grandchildren." The negative side supported the thesis that science would help better living conditions for our descendants.

25 Years Ago — May 1960

Dick Bourdelais set a new school record Monday in a meet with Marblehead. He cleared 5 feet, 11 inches, besting the former record by one inch. Andover swept the Marblehead meet, 51-26.

The Selectmen have given the Trombly Motor Coach Co. its franchise to operate over local streets, while providing express bus service to Boston. Acting Monday night, the Board made it plain that buses must not operate on Central St., nor via Essex st. and Lupine rd., heading toward Dascomb rd. An alternate route was stressed, that would have the buses proceed along present Route 28 as far as Route 125, there transferring to Route 93.

Perhaps it would be reasonable to have one special town meeting, at which all the zoning articles can be considered apart from all other subjects. We've noticed in the past that zoning articles at the annual town meeting fell well back in the warrant — so that essentially only those

Concerned

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

We would like to express our concern regarding the recent editorial published in the ANDOVER TOWNSMAN on May 2 titled "A Meddlesome Tactic." The School Committee is to be commended for speaking out on several issues: communication between the committee, school administration and parents, the philosophy of the developmental primary program and the accountability of the administration regarding program implementation. The TOWNSMAN stated that the School Committee ought to "get on with the program and avoid the danger of becoming meddlesome." This attitude is unacceptable. It prevents the educational process in Andover from being the best it can be.

Parents have some significant concerns regarding the educational philosophy and practices at Bancroft. We look to the School Committee to improve the process by which we can communicate these concerns.

We are pleased to see the School Committee addressing the communication problem. The attitude "let the administrators administrate" or "let the professionals do it" is not acceptable. Among the essential elements of the "communication bridge" are the "whys" and "hows" of new programs along with strength and weaknesses of current programs. A thorough analysis of the consequences of implementing a new program needs to be included in its proposal. The advantages and disadvantages of a new program need to be clearly identified. Processes for overcoming the disadvantages need to be clearly articulated. Unless proposed programs are well documented by their proponents, the School Committee ought to veto their implementation.

The administrators, School Committee and parents need to work together to enable each of our children to reaize his/her full potential. We hope the School Committee increases its "meddling."

Appreciative

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

Andover Recycling held its annual Giant Recycling Sale, Auction and Aluminum Drive Saturday at Draper Hall, Phillips Academy, and because of all who helped, it was a great success. George Neilson, Frank Buchan and the Phillips Academy Physical Plant employees made Draper Hall available for convenient storage weeks before sale day. Capt. Belben, Lt. Lynch and other in the Andover Police Department provided the bikes for which auctioneer Doug Mifflin enthusiastically found new homes. Bob Finneran and Carl Russo of the TOWNSMAN made our promotional articles and picture possible. The Four Seasons and Spade and Trowel Garden Clubs offered beautiful plants for sale. The Andover Recycling volunteers, particularly Chairperson Barbara Swift, worked long hours before, during and after ths sale. The Ruggieros of CLASS, the Greater Lawrence Community Action Council, and Milt Cole helped with cleanup. Our many generous donors gave us the vast variety of goods for sale and hundreds of supporters came to buy.

Thank you, one and all, for keeping our sale going strong year after year, because you're also supporting the worthwhile recycling effort that sets Andover apart as a community of truly concerned and involved citizens.

Promgoers Told Of Dangers Of Driving After Drinking

By Susan Rand

Before they could attend tomorrow night's annual high school prom Andover High School students had to hear the story of a 30-year-old Lawrence man who was driving drunk and killed his five-year-old son in an automobile accident.

Lawrence resident James Powers contacted school officials to ask if he could tell his story, said Mike Marcoux, coordinator of drug education in the Andover schools. Marcoux had planned to show a film to the students but along came Powers, someone who Marcoux said could "tell it like it is."

And on Tuesday morning when Powers, who is now living in a Newburyport halfway house, told his story to the over 500 students assembled at the high school "you could hear a pin drop," said Marcoux. "It was probably the best assembly we have ever had."

Powers was driving his young sons, aged five and seven, to Howard Johnson's, on Rt. 213, for an ice cream cone—and sipping his beer—when he came to stop signs, he told the students. One of his sons told him to look up and when he did he saw a car heading for him, travelling about 80 miles an hour. His youngest son died in that crash.

In addition to the Tuesday lecture students attending the prom received a "contract" from SADD when they bought their prom tickets. The student organization known as Students Against Drunk Driving, sent the contracts to the students who are asked to sign the document with their parents. The contract pledges that if the student, or parents, are drunk either will call the other for a ride home.

"Most do get signed," said SADD President John Drake of the contracts which are voluntary and kept at home.

Some parents will be available on prom night, said Marcoux, to drive students who are intoxicated home. Anyone found under the influence of drugs or alcohol will be detained by the police officers at the prom, said Marcoux. Their parents will be called and, if they are seniors, they might be barred from the graduation ceremony, he added.

One last reminder of the dangers of driving drunk will greet students as they enter their Shawsheen Road school tomorrow. A smashed car, the result of a drinking accident, will be positioned outside the school through Monday, Marcoux said.

Students going to the prom will receive SADD keychains and while they are eating they will see SADD flyers on their tables at Christian Formation Center telling them to "stay alive in '85, don't drink and drive."

SADD officers are John Drake, president; Lynn Dutton, secretary; and publicity persons Tom Rossbach and Bill Weidman. According to Drake there are 400 student members of SADD, making it the largest organization in the school.

Grams Has Impressive Statistics

Andover's Mark Grams is having quite a season for the University of Lowell's baseball team. Since he has been installed in the Chief's starting lineup, the ULowell team has won 21 of their last 25 games, giving them an overall mark of 25-10.

Grams has put together some impressive stats in his first season. The freshman second baseman boasts a .348 batting average, collecting 28 hits while driving in 31 runs. He is well on his way to breaking many defensive records for a freshman, including total chances, fielding percentage and double plays turned over by a freshman second baseman.

With just a few games remaining, Lowell hopes to get an at large bid in the NCAA Division 2 regionals for the third time in five years.

Grams played high school ball under Bill Vickers.

Awarded Letter At Wesleyan

Rick Apgar, a sophomore at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., and a resident of Andover, earned his first varsity letter in lacrosse, coach Terry Jackson announced.

Injured during the lacrosse season as a freshman, Apgar helped the Wesleyan cause as a lacrosse squad manager. Healthy in 1985, he responded with nine goals and six assists for 15 points. Apgar, a starter at midfield, peppered opposing goaltenders with 45 shots, an average of more than four per game.

After two straight winning season, the Cardinals dropped a number of close decisions enroute to a 3-8 record in 1985.

Apgar, son of Charles and Pamela Apgar, 28 Bancroft Road, is a 1983 graduate of Phillips Academy, Andover. He forged an outstanding athletic career out of his years at prep school as he was an all-New England lacrosse and soccer selection.

Junior Warriors On Rebound

By Dan Grams

The Andover High School Junior Varisty baseball team took two of three games last week. The Junior Warriors, who have been plagued by poor defensive play all season, put together their three best efforts of the season to raise their record to 7-5.

After losing a tough 3-1 game against Lawrence, the Golden Warriors bounced back to defeat Methuen 7-4 and Greater Lawrence 8-7 in extra innings.

They received solid pitching performances from Mike Klinger and Mark Hashem and clutch hitting from Peter Quintal and Gerry Nassif to lead the way.

Lawrence 3 - Andover 1

Andover's Mike Klinger and Lawrence's Pat Matachon hooked up in a real pitchers' duel as Lawrence nipped Andover 3-1.

The game marked the first night baseball for a Junior Warrior club in more than five years.

Andover managed to outhit Lawrence 7-4, but the Lancers were able to bunch five of their hits in the fifth stanza to give them a 3-0 lead.

Andover squandered scoring opportunities in the third and fifth innings as Peter Quintal and Chris Sappupo ripped doubles, but the Lancer defense turned back the Golden Warriors.

Andover finally broke the ice in the seventh, but it was too little, too late. Dave Sullivan delivered Andover's fourth double of the game and raced home on Sappupo's second safety of the game, but Sappupo was left stranded.

Klinger allowed just four Lancer hits, while walking six and fanning six in a losing effort. The talented lefty has now dropped his last two decisions by scores of 3-2 and 3-1.

Sappupo paced Andover with two hits and an RBI, while Sullivan, Quintal and Mike Powers chipped in.

Andover 7 - Methuen 4

Andover broke into the win column with an impressive 7-4 victory over Methuen.

Andover ace Mark Hashem was the route going winner, twirling a five hitter while whiffing five.

The Golden Warriors relied on a big third inning outburst and coasted the rest of the way.

Already ahead 2-1, the Golden Warriors opened the bottom of the third with a bang. Mark Tucker ripped a line shot up the middle and stole second. Cam Deery walked and Mike Klinger moved Deery and Tucker along with a sacrifice bunt. Tucker was erased on a slow roller at the plate for the second out, but Peter Quintal kept the inning alive with a double. Gerry Nassif had a double of his own to give Andover a 6-1 lead.

Methuen managed to cut the lead to 6-4 in the fourth. The Golden Warriors picked up an insurance run the fourth. Bob Pothier led off with a single and moved around on walks to Tucker, Deery and Chris Sappupo.

Tucker, Quintal and Nassif had a pair of safeties with Pothier, Sullivan and Paul Sapienza chipping in.

The Junior Warriors turned in an outstanding defensive game, handling 33 of 35 chances as they turned over their third twin killing of the season on a nice stab by first baseman Mark Tucker. Mike Powers and Sappupo also starred defensively.

Andover 8 - Greater Lawrence 7

This was two games rolled into one as Andover pulled out a thrilling 8-7 victory over Greater Lawrence.

The first five innings was all Lawrence, but the Golden Warriors saved the best for last, pushing seven runs across over the final two innings and the game-winning tally in the bottom of the eighth inning.

Andover bats only managed three safeties. They finally got on the scoreboard in the sixth. After a Peter-Quintal

Twins 6 - Indians 5

The Twins increased their record to 3-0 with a 6-5 victory over the Indians. They scratched five runs in the first two innings with Matt McKenna and Will Lowry coming up with key hits. Ian Timmons scored the winnig run in the fourth inning when he scored from second base on an infield grounder that was misplayed. Pitcher Brendan Sharkey limited the hard-hitting Indians to eight hits. Mark McKenna was outstanding at second base. Indian pitcher and shortstop Bryan Smith smashed his fourth home run of the year. Mike Fettin and Mark Baker each collected a pair of RBIs to bring the Indians within one run of the Twins, but Sharkey bore down in the last two innings to stop the rally.

Twins 5 - Red Sox 3

The Red Sox hosted the Twins on a hot afternoon. The Twins jumped to a lead on a double by Greg Poor, followed by singles by Brendon Sharkey and Matt McKenna in the first.

McKenna, the twins' starting pitcher, was flawless. He fanned seven of the nine batters he faced over three innings. Twins reliever, Keith Bilger, did not fare as well. A double by Chris Lembo was soon followed by a home run by Adam Ferry to bring the Red Sox within one at the end of four.

Heads-up base running added two runs for the Twins while the Red Sox fought back to get one off of McKenna.

Sean Ryan went the distance in a losing effort, allowing only four hits.

Josh Nelkin had a strong game at second for the Red Sox while Tim Plankey was outstanding behind the plate for the Twins.

Orioles 10 - White Sox 4

The Orioles won their first game of the season 10-4 over the White Sox, behind the three-hit, ten strike-out pitching of single and a Mark-Hashem walk, Gerry Nassif ripped a long line drive homerun to left center, cutting the Lawrence lead to 7-3.

Mike Powers and Mike Hart lashed back-to-back singles. Cam Deery chased Powers home via a fielder's choice. Quintal then delivered his third hit of the game, a triple. Hashem rescued Quintal with a perfect suicide squeeze to tie the score at 7.

Andover came through with the game winner in the eighth. Mark Tucker opened it up with a triple to right center. Walks to Deery and Sappupo loaded the bases, before Hashem dropped his second straight suicide squeeze giving Andover the victory.

Quintal and Nassif each had three hits, while Tucker, Mike Hart, Powers, Hashem and Jeff Kittleson had the other hits.

Hashem picked up the win, raising his mound record to 5-2, throwing a 1-2-3 eight inning.

Shortstop Kittleson was the defensive star of the game, turning over two double plays as well as making a diving stop and gunning a Lawrence runner down.

Little League

Chethan Harish. Eleven-year-old Harish went the distance in recording his first major league win.

Sharing the limelight with Harish was Oriole first baseman Peter Arthur who went four-for-four, including two doubles and drove in five runs.

In the home half of the second, the Sox broke a 1-1 tie with three runs. Phil Boness led off with a bunt single. A sacrifice and a base on balls preceded Mike DiStefano's double which drove home two runs. Scott Eggert singled to score DiStefano. Thus ended the White Sox scoring as Harish threw shutout ball the rest of the way.

The Orioles took the lead in the third when Harish and Paul Durant walked. Ron Rygwalski singled for an RBI and Arthur doubled home Durant and Rygwalski. Shawn Garrity's singled rescued Arthur. The Orioles added three more runs in the fourth with Brian Workman, Arthur and Adam Goddess providing RBI base hits.

Mike D'Angelo, Durant and Kevin Lewis had base hits and Workman had two. John Melillo made a fine catch from his shortstop position for the Sox as did Oriole leftfielders Chad Bowman and John Bowman. Both catchers, Lewis (Orioles) and Brad Cronin (White Sox), gave credit to that thankless position.

White Sox 13 - Yankees 5

The tough luck White Sox broke into the win column by beating the feisty Yankees. It was a pitching duel until the bottom of the third when the White Sox erupted for nine runs. They held on for a 13-5 vitory.

Scott Eggert anchored the defense, pitching three hitless innings and making three tough plays in the field. Mike DiStefano played flawlessly at short and Jimmy O'Fria made a fine catch in right. Brad Cronin came in to strike out the last three batters.

Offensively, O'Fria led the way with two hits, Eggert rocketed a ball through the fence for a double and DiStefano, Cronin, John Millo and Phil Boness had single smashes.

The Yankees were led by Craig Der-Ananian who put one in orbit with a man on in the fifth. Paul Lisick and Matt Jennings hit singles. Jeff Foley and Geoff Schaake anchored the defense.

Indians 17 - Yankees 11

The Indians won their fourth in five outings by beating the Yankees at West Elementary. The Tribe jumped off to a quick lead with nine runs in the first inning. The Yanks did not give up and kept chipping away at the lead.

The offense of both teams was in great form. Bryan Smith led the Indians with two hits (one his fifth home run) and four RBI. Mike Daley and Chris Pothier had two hits. Single base hits were recorded by Mark Hopkinson (2 RBI), Ben Howard (home run and 2 RBI) and Tom Torrissi (1 RBI).

Paul Lisiak, John Bishop and Mike Pettoruto each had two hits for the Yanks. Jeff Foley, Larry Gibson and Shad Flaig had base hits.

Exhibit

The role of women in American industry is depicted in the current exhibit, "Perfect in Her Place," at the Wentworth Institute of Technology Alumni Library in Boston through June 7.

The exhibition traces the contribution of women's labor from the 19th century through World war I in photographs, text and quotations from contemporarty publications.

The exhibition offers glimpses of the ammunitions industry, U.S. Mint, printing trades, shoe industry and watch making, and demonstrates how women were excluded from profitable jobs and encouraged to supply the cheap labor needed by industries eager to compete on the world market.

When you do, you'll find out about the advantages of joining the Lahey Clinic - Blue Cross and Blue Shield Health Maintenance Organization.

Our representatives will tour the facilities with you, and explain, for example, how there's no charge for an office visit. How you're free to choose your own doctor. And how the health care for you and your family can be provided, all under the convenience of one roof. By Lahey Clinic's world famous specialists.

Assessors

received abatements, although neither he nor the assessor could say exactly how many abatements have been approved this year.

The assessor also emphasized that townspeople may appeal only their fall tax bills (usually issued in November), which contain notification of their new valuations. The spring bills (usually issued in May) merely represent the second half of the two-part billing for the year, and cannot be appealed, he said.

After the fall bills have been issued, taxpayers have 30 days to file for an abatement. If the assessors deny a request for an abatement, the taxpayer then has 90 days to file an appeal with the state's Appellate Tax Board. (Atty. Daniels said citizens may also appeal to the county commissioners.)

Even if residents have already been denied a formal hearing, the assessors currently have some time to informally review questions about assessments, now that the latest tax-bill season is behind them, Russell said.

He suggested that townspeople bring "serious problems" to the attention of the board before the next round of tax bills are sent out next fall.

The town manager seconded that suggestion, saying it would be "easy to talk with the assessor right now. Now is the time to drop him a line — chances are you'll talk to him."

The state law that mandated Andover's 100 percent valuation of all property in 1981 also mandates an update of those assessments at least once every three years, Russell said. That update was completed by the assessors last year, and then reviewed and approved by the state Department of Revenue.

He explained that the assessors did not physically inspect every property, the way revaluation consultants did in 1981.

Instead, the assessors reviewed the 1981 assessment for each property, then considered the property's architectural style, type of framework, interior construction, number of bedrooms and bathrooms, whether it had a family room, garage, or finished basement, and quality of construction. Physical depreciation was also considered, he said.

The assessors then compared their new valuation to 1983 sales in Andover, (more than 500 properties were sold that year, according to Russell), to help them arrive at an updated fair market value.

Western Roundup

By Kathleen Jayes and Sandra Liaw

Spring has been filled with a frenzy of activities. West hosted two musical productions a Bach and Cabaret Festival, featuring instrumental entertainment, comedy skits and singing. Miss Palmer, music director, and members of the student government were enthusiastically helped by the student body, which is the contributing factor to the overwhelming success of the two productions.

The excitement is not over yet, however. The ninth graders are anticipating the beach party and social on June 7. In addition, the whole student body is preparing for a very special Open House, the theme of which is "We Are the World." There will be skits relating to this topic, along with displays of the students' works in their classes. All in all, there is much to look forward to in the weeks ahead at West.

Down The Years

with special interests in zoning remain to vote on the issues. Thus it seems reasonable to assume that a special meeting for all zoning changes would attract as many voters as are interested.

10 Years Ago — May 1975

If they could only talk, at least half a dozen elm trees in Andover could tell Revolutionary tales first hand. The trees — three of them belonging to the town and the others on private property — have been identified as at least 200 years old by a group of Andover residents who took an elm tree survey last weekend. The group will apply for plagues from the Elm Research Institute in Harrisville, N.H., which will designate the trees as "American Bicentennial Elms" and carry a plea that they be protected and preserved.

The Main Street market known as "The Co-Op" for lo these 40 years, will become "Barcelos Bros." one of these days. The brothers, Joe, John, and Carlos, who have owned a store in Lawrence for the past seven years, are planning to stay with the same system as much as possible, so old customers won't get lost. They have also indicated their intention to keep all of the present Co-Op personnel, and to make the store "more alive" by redecorating.

Deputy Fire Chief Albert Cole, a veteran of almost 30 years on the Andover fire department is retiring, thus ending a long family line of service to the department. Deputy Cole has been a member of the department since Dec. 31, 1945. His father, Albert Cole, Sr., was a member of the department for many years and was the town's first permanent lieutenant. Deputy Cole's brother, John T., retired a few years ago as a deputy chief of the department.

Andover Flower Shoppe: Doing the Tasteful and Appropriate

Step in from beneath the awning at 78 Main Street in Andover, and you find yourself in another world. A tasteful but exotic world of greenery, basketry, pastel dried flower arrangements and vivid silk blooms; an island, in truth, in Rudi Pivovar's sea of imagination.

Rudi is the soul of the new Andover Flower Shoppe. Each item—the potpourri balls, the baskets edged in dried flowers, the wreaths (ranging from simple grapevines to elaborate dried flower and lace confections)—is Rudi's own one-of-a-kind creation. Even his fresh flowers are all imported and exotic; not a carnation in the bunch.

Rudi sees The Andover Flower Shoppe as more than a retail flower store. "Every person who comes here is special," he says. "I will spend as much time as necessary helping a customer pick out the right few blooms for three dollars, even as I would for someone with a $150 decorating budget." He is proud of his unique ability to tailor floral decoration to the setting of an occasion. "I will go to the home for a party," he says, "and match the appropriate arrangements to the atmosphere. I can make it appear that a customer who has a budget of $150 has spent $400 on her flowers," he adds. "We gain many new customers by word-of-mouth; we have an elegant shop, but our prices are very modest for what we do."

The key to Rudi's technique lies in his eye for design and his experience in his field—more than 20 years. A trained interior decorator and floral designer, Rudi has arranged flowers for Presidents and visiting dignitaries at the Ritz-Carlton, set wedding stages with the Abbey Bridal Shoppe, and worked as floral arranger to both the Andover Inn and the Sheraton Rolling Green for several years. He has also owned his own shop in Windham, New Hampshire.

Whether it is a single rose or a complete floral setting for a party, wedding or funeral, The Andover Flower Shoppe will do it with the same personal attention and flair that characterize the shop itself. Stop in Tues-Sat 9-5 (closed Monday) or call 475-8553.

Century 21 Ahearn & Ahearn: Service and Citizenship

Century 21 Ahearn & Ahearn Realty, Inc., located at 232 Sutton Street in North Andover, believes in community service in the fullest definition of the word.

Its 17 members, who live in the communities they serve, keep abreast of trends in the complicated, ever-changing real estate field through Century 21's sophisticated educational system. Century 21 membership also gives them access to a nation-wide network of property and financial resources. Proven salespersons, they are eager and capable of selling and locating property, private or commercial, for residence or for investment. The agency's record speaks for the competence of its staff: in the seven years Century 21 Ahearn & Ahearn has been in business, its total sales volume has more than doubled with each year, with 1985's residential and investment sales volume expected to exceed $20,000,000.

In addition to this committment to professional service, Century 21 Ahearn & Ahearn offers a vital financial service, designed to cut through the confusion of property acquisition and sales. "On Wednesday evenings from 6 to 8," says co-owner Walt Ribeck, "We set appointments for the public to come and speak with a financial specialist. It's a complimentary service to our customers and clients."

Ahearn & Ahearn, and Century 21 nationwide, also believe that being an active citizen is essential to community service. To this end, Century 21's national network has raised more than $2,000,000 this year in contributions to the Easter Seal campaign. "We intend to top $300,000 in our region," says Ribeck. As part of his own personal commitment, he raised $600 in pledges with his recent 3:38:14 Boston Marathon run. His partner, Rick Coco, has contributed hundreds of dollars to the effort through volleyball marathons

Century 21 Ahearn & Ahearn Realty, Inc., is open M-F 9AM-8PM; Sat & Sun 9-5. Call 470-0021 any time, day or night, to find out how the agency can best serve you.

OUT-OF-SIGHT LAND

If you are planning to sell your present home and move to a retirement community, that's fine. However, if you are basing this move on the purchase of a building lot out-of-state and intend to buy the land sight-unseen, that's not so fine. Buying land through the mail can be very risky business. Do your homework first.

It's happened before and will happen again. A land promoter buys a huge tract of undeveloped, remote, desert land and depicts a beautiful retirement community in a glossy, full-color brochure. Despite continued warnings from the government and Realtors alike, many senior citizens have been bilked by mail-order land schemes.

The best advice is to never buy land which you have not personally inspected. Seek professional advice. Before making such a decision, consult with us. We'll be glad to check out the offer and recommend established real estate firms in the area where you wish to retire. It makes sense to be safe.

SELLING YOUR HOUSE

By Lou Patracone

CRYSTAL BALL READING

Industry experts are predicting stable interest rates for mortgages in 1985, with real estate prices up about 4.3 percent.

We're making a few predictions too. This year, as always, many owners will try to sell their houses themselves. They'll invest in advertising that may or may not work. They'll wait for prospective buyers who may or may not show up. They'll escort a lot of strangers through their homes.

Then, after the advertising costs, the lost income while waiting at home, and the showing hassles, 9 out of 10 sellers will sign up with a real estate professional. We can make that firm prediction because it happens all the time.

Don't waste time and money going the do-it-yourself route. Call in the experts right away. You'll get better results with no hassles when you list with the real estate professionals at —

Early Retirement Plan For Teachers Wins Acceptance

By Susan Rand

Andover teachers have agreed on an early retirement incentive that will pay them a bonus to leave the school system.

Accepted by the School Committee at their April 7 meeting, the plan is considered an experimental program and will run through August 31, 1986.

The plan, which was signed by Andover Education Association President Steve Jankauskas on April 17, will pay $7,500 to a 55 year-old retiring AEA member who has 15 years of teaching experience in Andover. That amount decreases by $1,000 as the age increases a year until age 62 when teachers will be given $500 to retire.

A similar program for school administrators was approved in the contract the Andover Teamsters Local 380 signed with the committee, also at last Tuesday's meeting. That retirement plan will pay administrators with at least 15 years of service $5,000 to retire. But unlike the teacher's plan the administrator's retirement, compensation does not decrease with the age of the administrator.

Under the terms of the agreement with the teacher's union, School Committee members aren't obligated to fund more than six applications a year. Although they may decide to fund more than six or deny the early retirement if a department would be adversely affected with more than one retirement. Applications for the '84-'85 school year teacher program were due yesterday.

According to Andover Superintendent of Schools Kenneth R. Seifert more that two thirds of the faculty is over the top step of the salary schedule, meaning, he explained, that they have over 13 years of experience. The retirement incentive, said Seifert, is a way of hiring new staff members at a cost savings to the school system because they will, in many cases, be paid less than teachers they are replacing.

"Some people are contemplating early retirement or a move to another profession," Seifert said. "This will give them an incentive to move and get new staff to move in."

Assessors

Russell called this a "market approach to valuation."

Some residents complained that their homes have been assessed at values up to 28 percent higher than their last valuations, even though they have not made substantial improvements to their homes during the past three years.

According to Russell, "That's not really a large difference. Construction costs have gone up in the last three years. Market value has certainly gone up more than that. Many people don't realize what's happening to the market today."

The average residential assessment went up by about 24 percent, he said; the average Andover residence is valued at $113,000.

But if the market decrees that Andover property values are going to increase, taxpayers want those increases to be "equitable across the board," one resident said. She explained that while her assessment went up "a whopping twenty-five percent," her neighbors saw increases of only five percent.

Patricia Dye of Smithshire Estates agreed. She noted that after a neighbor's house — newer than her own — was sold, her assessment went up by 25 percent.

"And nothing had been added but some gypsy moth damage and some termite damage," Dye told the board. Thanks to the sales data the assessors use, she said, "One-third of the town is in the spot we're in — we're inequitably assessed."

Russell said that in "certain areas, some properties are undervalued. Some of these have been brought to our attention, and some we've discovered on our own. We intend to make some corrections in those this year."

While the assessors are in the process of "fine-tuning" valuations, he said, they would welcome input from citizens: "Send us a letter (about a property that may be underassessed), and we'll review it."

Deborah Moggio of Hidden Road (who, along with Joan Prum of Hidden Road, asked the selectmen to schedule a public discussion on assessment practices in Andover) said that townspeople need better communication with the assessors.

They may in particular need more information about how to apply for an abatement and how to file an appeal with the Appellate Tax Board, she said.

. Selectmen Chairman William Dalton, noting that the assessors are "overloaded," suggested that the hiring of more "support personnel" might help improve communication with citizens. (State law mandates that only three members may actually serve on the board of assessors.)

Russell told the meeting that the assessors are not opposed to educating the public, and in fact try to post information in their office and disseminate it through the local press.

"We're not hiding information from the taxpayers," he said.
